Report Highlights:

This report provides a partial list of consultants available for conduct of market research and other investigations into Indian agriculture, agribusiness, food retailing, the food economy, and rural affairs. This list is neither exhaustive nor all-inclusive. Inclusion of any consultant on this list does not constitute an endorsement of that consultant, nor does exclusion of any consultant from this list imply any lack of such endorsement. This list is provided strictly as a courtesy to those who desire information in greater detail than that provided in this office's GAIN reports. These consultants are believed to be reliable, but neither the author of this report nor the U.S. Department of Agriculture makes any guarantee of performance by a consultant on this list, or of the accuracy or suitability of any information such a consultant may provide.

General Information:

This report provides a partial list of consultants available for conduct of market research and other investigations into Indian agriculture, agribusiness, food retailing, the food economy, and rural affairs. Some firms on this list also offer representation services for firms desiring a local presence in the market.

Readers of GAIN reports sometimes address to this office inquiries or requests for information that exceed the ability of USDA's offices in India to fulfill. These inquiries range from requests for detailed research into a specific Indian state's agriculture sector to requests for in-depth analysis of a specific product. While we strive to be as helpful as possible, we are unable to accommodate most requests for custom analysis and research. For that reason, we present here a list of potential commercial sources of analytical and research services.

This list is neither exhaustive nor all-inclusive. Inclusion of any consultant on this list does not constitute an endorsement of that consultant, nor does exclusion of any consultant from this list imply any lack of such endorsement. This list is provided strictly as a courtesy to those who desire information in greater detail than that provided in this office's GAIN reports. These consultants are believed to be reliable, but neither the author of this report nor the U.S. Department of Agriculture makes any guarantee of performance by a consultant on this list, or of the accuracy or suitability of any information such a consultant may provide.
